PRESIDENT'S THOUGHTS

by Brian Wilk
Illinois PHCC President

Finally we are nearing the end of Covid, hopefully. Earlier this month we were able to meet in person for the June Board of Directors Meeting in East Peoria. I feel very privileged to accept the position of President of the Association. Due to Covid, the last two years have been very different in the association, as it has been for all of us personally as well. The Illinois PHCC was able to meet the demand for change in ways that it never had before, and succeeded! We will continue the work the board and staff have been doing to stay ahead of problems and continue to adapt to change as needed.

For people who don't know me, I am Brian Wilk and with my wife, Jacqie, we own Bishop Plumbing, Heating and Cooling, Inc. in Mount Prospect, Illinois. We have six adult children, five grandchildren, with currently one more on the way and I'm sure many more to come. I personally have worked at Bishop for over forty-two years now, so when I say I'm committed, my record speaks for itself.

When I first started at Bishop I was one of three employees, just fifteen years old, a sophomore in high school and wasn't able to have a driver's license yet. I cleaned the shop and trucks after school. Once graduating from high school I worked full time. When an underground job came in, I would help as needed and started to learn the trade. If the plumber needed a hand on a sewer rod, I was sent out and then continued to learn anything I could. Slowly the company started sending me out on service calls by myself. Once becoming a journeyman plumber, and the company continuing to grow, my roles here changed. Running work as a foreman, estimating and being the go-to person became a regular way of life at work.

As time progressed I found myself becoming more involved with plumbing organizations. Plumbers Local 130 hired me to perform a night school class to help their apprentices learn more about the service side of the plumbing industry. I became a Local 130 Fund Trustee, a Plumbing Contractors Association Board Member and currently I am still teaching a plumbing service class for the United Association in Ann Arbor, Michigan every year.

A few years ago my wife and I had the opportunity to purchase Bishop. Imagine that commitment, sweeping floors in high school to owning the company forty-two years later. Bishop Plumbing, Heating and Cooling, Inc. has now been in business for over 100 years!

This accomplishment could not have been done without the hundreds, maybe thousands of coworkers, friends, family, plumbers, customers, mentors and mostly my wife that taught me, guided me and pushed me in the right direction to get to this place now.

This story should help everybody to know that if you tell the truth, are willing to listen to and accept change that most anything can be done when we work together.

No one person can have success by themselves and that is why I have committed myself to working with the Illinois PHCC to continue its legacy of improving the plumbing, heating and cooling industries for all of us!

Brian

OUR MOTORSPORTS CREW TO DELIVER KEYNOTE ADDRESS AT CONNECT2022

PHCC is excited to announce that the leadership team of Our Motorsports, a professional stock car racing team that currently competes full-time in the NASCAR Xfinity Series, will deliver the keynote address at PHCCCONNECT2022, Oct. 5-7, in Charlotte, North Carolina. With ties to a Massachusetts construction company, Our Motorsports Owners Chris Our and Mary Our (pictured), as well as General Manager Kevin Cope, will share insider secrets on how trust, dedication, hard work, doing the right thing, and no shortcuts lead to winning the right way in both arenas.

The educational line-up also includes more than 20 sessions for both service and repair and new construction contractors, as well as a unique Product & Technology Showcase with displays unlike any before! And our challenge to you this year is to help us build the “Next Generation.” Check out special discounts for additional employees from your company and exclusive programming for the future generation; bring young people from your business or chapter to experience CONNECT for themselves!

Our line of storm and sewage pumps is built with the highest quality components to ensure the utmost durability and reliability. We offer pumps for a variety of residential and light commercial applications. Our pumps are relied upon by plumbers and homeowners to meet the most demanding storm and sewage water challenges.

Our pump control products feature Ion Digital Level Sensors in place of standard float switches. The sensors feature solid state sensing technology with no moving parts to wear or fail. We offer a variety of switches and controllers that can control multiple pumps, monitor precise water levels, alert to problems, and more.

Our battery backup systems use an inverter, allowing the pump to bypass the battery and run off standard AC electricity when there is power. When power is lost, the inverter will convert the DC battery to AC, running the pump at its highest capacity during the duration of use.

Planning for Extreme Weather Conditions

As temperatures around the world continue to rise, scientific studies indicate that extreme weather events are likely to become more frequent. Unusually hot summers, warmer winters, dangerous heat waves, fluctuations in precipitation throughout the United States, increases in severe storms and wildfires, and changes to flood events and drought patterns are all linked to climate changes.¹ These weather conditions can disrupt many aspects of your business — so what can you do to help keep it safe?

Clear Guidelines

Do you have an emergency preparedness and response plan for your business? If not, now is the time to put one together. Emergency planning is a year-round endeavor, but pay extra attention before the start of severe weather season in your area. Consider “best practices” before, during, and after a weather emergency, along with actions to address potential unique challenges specific to your business’ facilities and operations. Ensure your plan covers your most valuable assets and operations, conduct regular training, and make sure employees have access to your response plan should they need it.

Plan Ahead

Specific weather trends vary by region, so be sure to do your research. If your business is located in an area where extreme weather conditions occur, or are occurring more often, you may need to plan ahead to prepare for what could happen. Consider these tips:

- Regularly test and service your air conditioner, heater, and generator to ensure they are functioning properly.
- Inspect vulnerable areas of your business and make necessary repairs and fortifications in advance.
- Ensure emergency systems are functioning and up-to-date, and that employees know how to report and respond to emergencies.
- Utilize a checklist to streamline your planning process.

Check the Forecast

While weather forecasts aren’t 100 percent accurate, they can offer a good starting point for you. If you have employees who are out on the road, or who have long commutes, keep them in mind when scheduling. Most meteorology services, such as the National Weather Service, publish their predictions a week or more in advance, and update them as conditions change. Start planning for road conditions early, but be prepared for last minute changes. If you deem the conditions too dangerous, keep your employees and vehicles off the road.

As extreme weather conditions continue to persist and intensify, keep in mind that you may need to plan for the highest ranking threats possible to be prepared for the worst. Emergency planning can help make your business more resilient, and better able to withstand potentially extreme weather events. Access Federated’s mySHIELD® or contact your local marketing representative for more information or resources.

THANKS TO YOU!

After 30 Years, Our Commitment to the Pro Is Stronger Than Ever.

In 1992, we made a pledge to the wholesale distribution and professional installation of our products. Many said we'd fail, but thanks to you, our professional contractors, we are still going strong!

To further support you, our loyal contractor customers, we will continue to invest in your success by expanding our For The Pro® resources from helpful business information to training, to installation and troubleshooting videos, and more. And of course, we will continue to invest in the innovation and manufacturing of products that are quite simply Built to be the Best®.
