PRESIDENT'S THOUGHTS

by Jeff Brown
Illinois PHCC President

Hello again,

Well our first meeting with our new Illinois PHCC officers and board is complete and seemed to go smoothly. I would like to thank everyone for attending the installation dinner and the board meeting. It was nice to see a good showing, and hopefully the good attendance will continue at the next meeting in November.

This month's issue of the magazine is the annual Illinois PHCC Directory issue. You will want to keep this issue for future reference. You can also view it at any time from our website, www.ilphcc.com. Contact the Illinois PHCC office if you would like additional copies of the Directory.

As for work in the area, I believe everyone knows it's tough out there. It's not too busy in the Bloomington/Normal area. Thankfully the state has finally passed a budget, including funding to continue the projects that are already under construction, saving millions in shut down and startup costs.

Summer is here. I hope everyone is getting jobs started, finished up, or summer work completed. Enjoy any vacations and the weather.

Until next month, everyone be safe and take care.

Thanks again,

Jeff Brown

OSHA NEWS

OSHA has released a new fact sheet explaining how the agency's Confined Spaces in Construction standard affects common spaces in residential construction, such as attics, basements, and crawl spaces. The fact sheet, developed after consultation with the National Association of Home Builders, and a detailed Frequently Asked Questions document, clarify some of the standard's provisions and their application to residential construction work. View the fact sheet at https:// www.osha.gov/Publications/OSHA3914.pdf

OSHA is proposing to delay the 2017 compliance date for electronic submissions of injury and illness logs from July 1 to Dec. 1. The five-month delay will allow the agency to further review the final rule to Improve Tracking of Workplace Injuries and Illnesses.

OSHA's Heat Safety Campaign website raises awareness of heat illness and its prevention and offers links to educational and training resources. It also links to a free smartphone app that allows users to calculate the heat index for their location and provides reminders about what to do to prevent heat illness. Employers and safety professionals are encouraged to use the website to share examples of how they are keeping workers safe in the heat. Heat tips and photos also can be shared on Twitter using the hashtags #WaterRestShade and #ProTips.

PHCC CONTRACTORS REPRESENT THE INDUSTRY DURING 2017 LEGISLATIVE CONFERENCE

The 2017 PHCC Legislative Conference, June 13-14 in Washington, D.C., brought contractors and association executives from across the country together to convey a unified message of the need for tax reform, workforce development, and Energy Policy and Conservation Act (EPCA) reform.

Setting the stage at the opening session, PHCC President Patrick Wallner stated, “These are extraordinary times in Washington, D.C., as well as for our entire nation. Lawmakers are faced with difficult challenges on a number of national issues impacting all of us.” He reminded attendees that while PHCC leadership can lobby Washington regarding general issues, grassroots involvement by members is essential to making a difference at home.

One of the highlights of this year’s conference was a Congressional Reception at the Rayburn House Office Building on Capitol Hill. Several members of Congress attended the reception and spoke passionately about the need for workforce education, additional funding for the Carl D. Perkins Act, and the importance of tax reform. Congressional speakers included Rep. Steve Chabot (R-OH); Rep. Gary Palmer (R-AL); Rep. Chris Collins (R-NY); Rep. Mike Coffman (R-CO); Rep. Virginia Foxx (R-NC); Rep. Barry Loudermilk (R-GA); Rep. Doug LaMalfa (R-CA); Rep. Chuck Fleishmann (R-TN); Rep. David Schweikert (R-AZ); and Rep. Thomas Suozzi (D-NY).

At the Congressional Breakfast, Rep. Kurt Schraeder (D-OR) and Rep. John Shimkus (R-IL) gave their perspectives about critical issues directly impacting PHCC’s members. “There is a big interest right now [about career and technical education] on Capitol Hill. You picked a great time to come here,” Rep. Schraeder said. Rep. Shimkus agreed, stating, “Workforce development is key to the future of our country.”

Illinois PHCC members with Representative John Shimkus.

Brian Kennedy, and Rick Kuhn.

During the breakfast, PHCC members observed a moment of silence for the victims of the shooting at the Congressional Baseball Team practice that morning. As a result of the incident, some meetings were rescheduled to meet altered congressional schedules. In addition, a Workforce Coalition meeting, to which a PHCC representative was invited, with the Department of Labor and President Trump was cancelled. However, PHCC delegates still had the opportunity to make their voices heard on Capitol Hill through private meetings with their respective lawmakers and staff. PHCC of Louisiana member and Past National President (2011-2012) Keith Bienvenu, scheduled to meet with shooting victim Rep. Steve Scalise (R-LA) that day, was interviewed by WUSA9 in Scalise’s Congressional office.

“We are so proud of how PHCC members kept focused on their advocacy roles at the conference, while also showing compassion as Americans,” Wallner said. “They truly displayed professionalism despite difficult circumstances. We look forward to continuing to work with the 115th Congress, and I am pleased that our efforts are making an impact in Washington, D.C.” 📷

The Heat is On

It's not the heat, it's the humidity! Unless you work outdoors, that is. Then it's both. Working outside on a nice summer day can be a pleasure. But if your job takes you outdoors when it's hot and humid, it can stop being pleasurable and become downright dangerous. In 2015 alone, 37 workers died and 2,010 were injured from environmental heat exposure.¹

The dangers of heat

Preparing for and handling working in heat and humidity can provide protection from potentially deadly conditions. Your body is designed to cool itself and normally does a good job. But, if you're exposed to extreme heat for too long, sweat a lot and don't rehydrate, your cooling system may fail. If that happens, watch out! A heat-related illness can start slowly—you may not even realize it's happening—but it can quickly get worse if it's not treated.

Heat-related illnesses and warning signs²

- Basically, heat cramps are Charley horses and can be an early warning sign of heat-related illness.
- Heat exhaustion symptoms include increased body temperature (as high as 104°F) and cold, clammy skin. Untreated, it can lead to heatstroke.
- Heatstroke is life-threatening and can cause brain damage, organ failure, or even death. Body temperature goes over 104°F. The victim may stop sweating even though his/her skin may be hot, and could also become confused or irritable. Medical attention is critical.

Major warning signs of heat-related illness include:

- Muscle cramps
- Nausea or vomiting
- Weakness
- Headache
- Dizziness/feeling light-headed
- Confusion

Avoiding the dangers of too much heat

Not everyone reacts to too much heat exposure the same way nor experiences all the classic symptoms of heat-related illness. If your employees ever work in hot conditions, they should know the related risks and preventive measures so they can protect themselves. Practicing basic precautions can help make working in hot weather more bearable and less dangerous.

- Pace yourself when working in the heat—don't overdo it.
- Hydrate with plenty of water or sports drinks, but no alcohol or caffeine.
- Dress appropriately—light-colored, lightweight, loose fitting clothing, including a wide-brimmed hat, if possible.
- Stay out of the midday sun whenever possible. Do the harder work during the cooler parts of the day. Take breaks in the shade.
- Wear sunscreen. A sunburn makes it harder for your body to cool itself.
- Certain medical conditions or medications can make you more vulnerable to over-heating.
- Keep an eye on co-workers. If someone is showing any of the symptoms of heat illness, notify your supervisor immediately.

TOP MYTHS ABOUT WORKING WITH A COLLECTION PARTNER DISPELLED

by Illinois PHCC Partner, IC Systems

■ Collections

Entrepreneurs of any size might be reluctant to turn to an accounts receivable partner for a host of reasons. Here are three myths about working with a third-party debt partner and how working with a reputable agency can boost your profits.

1. Debt collectors are only for extremely late bills.

As your receivables age, the likelihood of recovering payment diminishes, which of course shrinks your profits. A good collection partner can help you proactively recover your aging receivables even before it's time to hand them over to collections, between 60 and 90 days past-due. For these early delinquency accounts, IC System offers address verification services so you can uncover errors and address changes and resume communication with customers and clients. We can also write and mail final notices to your customers and clients, which has proven highly effective to recover outstanding balances.

2. They'll create a negative experience for my customers.

No one likes getting the notice in the mail. Even if they owe the money, that alone can set off strong emotions of embarrassment, anxiety, and anger. That is why a good collection partner understands that and treats your customers with dignity to preserve the customer relationship.

For more than 40 years, federal law has required collection agencies to follow specific rules when it comes to contacting customers. Middle of the night phone calls, threats of jail and humiliation are just some of the tactics that are downright illegal. Debt collectors are also required to cease contact at the debtor's request. Even so, a business owner who puts their customers first might have concerns and that's understandable. In March, the Federal Trade Commission released its report on consumer complaints in 2016. Debt collections were again at the top of the list with 859,090 complaints filed.

Here's something to put those concerns into perspective. Third-party debt collectors make more than 1 billion customer contacts a year, according to a 2015 report, so very few customers end up taking the step of registering a complaint. Fortunately, IC System was founded in 1937 with a drive toward ethics and integrity in our collection services. Maintaining regulatory compliance and staying ahead of the curve remains a top priority.

3. Debt collectors are too expensive.

Admittedly, some agencies are priced to attract larger clients. But small businesses are just as entitled to receive payment for their services or products. That's why IC System offers several tiers of service. That means a small business with just a few accounts receivable on the books will find an affordable option.

Want to learn more? Explore your options so you can take the next steps to resolving your accounts receivable. Call IC Systems at 1-800-279-3511 for more information or to receive a free quote.

The Illinois PHCC has partnered with IC Systems for many years to offer debt collection options for our members.

DOUBLE THE HOT WATER

OUTPUT FROM ONE TANK

Because our new, compact Water Heater Booster works with an existing electric or gas tank, it's easy to show homeowners how it's a smart way to get 45% more hot water* when their tank alone can't keep up with the demand—all without replacing their entire hot water system.

Rheem Water Heater Booster™ is loaded with advantages:

EASY INSTALLATION

Attaches directly to any tank or a nearby wall; Taps into the existing electrical circuit so there is no need for additional infrastructure when installed with an electric tank

SMALL SIZE, BIG OUTPUT

Saves space and gives 50-gallon water heater customers the capacity of an 80-gallon tank without having to replace or upgrade the water heater

REPEAT BUSINESS

Helps ensure you have access to all the hot water solutions you need to serve your customers best

HOW IT WORKS:

Booster installs directly to the hot water outlet of a tank, senses the outlet temperature and starts heating water when the tank's outlet temp drops below the booster's set activation point

Learn more by visiting

Rheem.com/waterheaterbooster today or call 1-800-621-5622.

* According to testing by an independent test agency, CSA, this product can increase hot water delivery by as much as 45% when tested to deliver hot water to a 2.5 GPM shower with a temperature not to drop below 105°F.  Additional wiring may be required for a gas tank installation.
